TO THE EDITORS OF THE DISTPATCH: Gentlemen.—I read this 26th instant calling apon all the candidates who are going to run for the Legislature of Virginia to give a correct answer—yes or nc—how they stood on the vexed questions of the day about the new State of Virginia, made so by the Congress of the United State, paying the oid, dead State of Virginia debts by assuming the name of Walker. McCulluck, or any other name. I think the writer is right, and the parties ought to answer all questions submitted by the voters, so they cannot be mistaken in their men. And if the worst enemy gets the nomination at the primary election the party who voted is in honor bound to vote for the nominee or keep mum. I certainly will not vote for no man who will not be in favor of a new State constutional convention to wipe out all old, dead State bonds and everything else impure to the progress of new Virginia. The "Sunday Liquor Law."

Editors Dispatch: I observe that your correspondent "Richmond" proposes that the candidates for the Legislature define their position on several questions of publie interest, and that you announce your willingness to publish short communications responsive to the questions propounded. The fourth question is:

" Are you in favor of the present Sunday liquor law? If not, in brief, what modification do you propose?" It is within the range of possibility that some of the candidates may respond to this inquiry, sentimentally, after the fashion of the fellow who, when asked his opinion about the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, exclaimed: "D-n the fourteenth amendmentwhat is the fourteenth amendment?"
